Company Overview - Dolcera

Located in Silicon Valley and Hyderabad, India, Dolcera was founded in 2004 as a professional services organization with a strong technology bent. Our focus is on providing clients with the technical, intellectual property and business information they need to develop new products and ideas, and to understand the competitive landscape and market environment. A particular focus of the organization is to apply tools such as wikis, data visualization, and information analysis to the challenge of finding and using relevant information in the age of data overload.

Our clients include a number of the world's largest legal and technical firms.

Our Services include

- Patent Research and Analytics
- Business and Market Research
- Collaboration and Knowledge Management

Product Description

Good Sales Lead Data is a must for every business; random junk calls can eat up hours and hours of a sales executive's time each month. Even if the data is available, it's outdated. This affects the Sales Planning Process of a company.

Dolcera helps in planning sales activities in most efficient way by providing relevant Contact Data. Our data is available on the cloud, and can be accessed from anywhere in the world. The data can be segregated on various parameters like Title, Departments, Role, etc.

However, it doesn't make much sense until one knows how the company is structured. To overcome this, we have company specific organizational charts which help in gathering insights on the company and target business verticals/divisions accordingly. Our data is manually curated, as compared to updating via scripts and other external software resources. Having understood the importance of each contact and the difference it can make to the fortunes of any organization, we provide you with the best resources for you to run your Business.
